Re: Expanded pharmacy benefits coverage for continuous glucose monitors, effective April 1, 2019

There have been dramatic improvements recently to continuous glucose monitoring (CGM) systems, including the U.S. Food & Drug Administration's approval of two therapeutic models.

As part of our commitment to ensure customers have easy access to quality, cost-effective options to help manage their diabetes, beginning April 1, 2019, we expanded coverage of two therapeutic CGMs – the Dexcom G6® and Abbott FreeStyle Libre – under the pharmacy benefits of eligible customers.

Benefits for your patients with Cigna coverage

While CGMs will continue to be covered as a medical benefit, expanding coverage as a pharmacy benefit may help reduce out-of-pocket expenses for our customers and allows customers to pick up the prescription at a retail pharmacy.

Simply use your ePrescribing capabilities to submit prescriptions in real time to the customer's pharmacy or Cigna Home Delivery Pharmacy. ePrescribing and processing the customer's CGM through their pharmacy benefits can reduce your paperwork.

Customers will pay their preferred brand copay or coinsurance for the CGM sensor. The transmitter and reader are available at no cost to the customer under their pharmacy benefit. As a reminder, please ensure the prescription includes all components of the CGM – sensor, transmitter, and reader.

We recommend speaking to your eligible patients with Cigna pharmacy benefits about the potential cost savings and convenience of ordering their Dexcom G6® or Abbott FreeStyle Libre continuous glucose monitor through their participating local pharmacy or Cigna Home Delivery Pharmacy.

Please note that if a patient has pharmacy benefits with another pharmacy benefit manager, this program will not apply.
